Civil Rights

TSA security screening policies, procedures and practices must comply with all applicable civil liberties and civil rights laws, regulations, executive orders and policies and must not discriminate against travelers on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, genetic information, sexual orientation and parental status.

Disability

TSA reviews and makes determinations regarding disability-related complaints as well as develops, manages and strengthens partnerships and outreach with the disability community.

Multicultural

TSA partners with organizations representing multicultural communities to gather input, facilitate mutual understanding and exchange information to include the following:

- Reviewing, conducting inquiries and making determinations regarding complaints based on race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, genetic information, sexual orientation and parental status.

- Developing, managing and strengthening partnerships and outreach with the multicultural community.
- Providing user-friendly information about what to expect from TSA programs and activities.
